Triggers can be used to capture actions that occur within a database. For example, you may want to capture a new row when a record is inserted or updated, or you may want to capture a row deletion. You can use a trigger to automatically execute a function when a database event occurs. Unlike recorded functions, however, triggers are active whenever the change occurs and can be maintained as the database evolves. Triggers can be used in all SQL Server database system resource (e.g., tables, views, stored procedures, and so on) objects.
